

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A noble metallic firing tip includes a protruding portion which is formed partly on its outer circumferential surface so as to protrude in the 5 direction substantially normal to the axis of a center electrode. The protruding portion is disposed in confronting relationship via a discharge gap with a distal end of an opposed portion of a ground electrode far from its leg portion.

10